DEDICATED TO
DR. LUTHER R. MEDLIN

The 1975 Whispering Pines is dedicated to Dr. Luther R. Medlin, president of Guilford Technical Institute, whose foresight and leadership transposed the Institute from " the GTI that was" to " the GTI that is," and whose retirement on June 30, 1975, prompts the many REFLECTIONS that we share. REFLECTIONS of growth. REFLECTIONS of progress. REFLECTIONS of innovation. REFLECTIONS of dedication. REFLECTIONS of respect. REFLECTIONS of graditude.

Dr. Medlin assumed the GTI presidency in September of 1967. He came to a campus of old, delapidated buildings that formerly served as a tuberculosis sanitorium. He was welcomed by a student body of fewer than 800, and a staff and faculty numbering 29. He came when the Institute's public image was at an all-time low, and the Institute, both administratively and physically, was struggling for existence.

At the conclusion of his eight years as chief administrative officer this June, he will leave a multi-million dollar campus beautified by five new buildings of contemporary design, a full-time student body exceeding 3,600, and a full-time staff and faculty of more than 200. He will also leave an institute respected by the professional and governmental communities as well as the citizenry-at-large of Guilford County.

He will leave for each of us an endless list of REFLECTIONS.

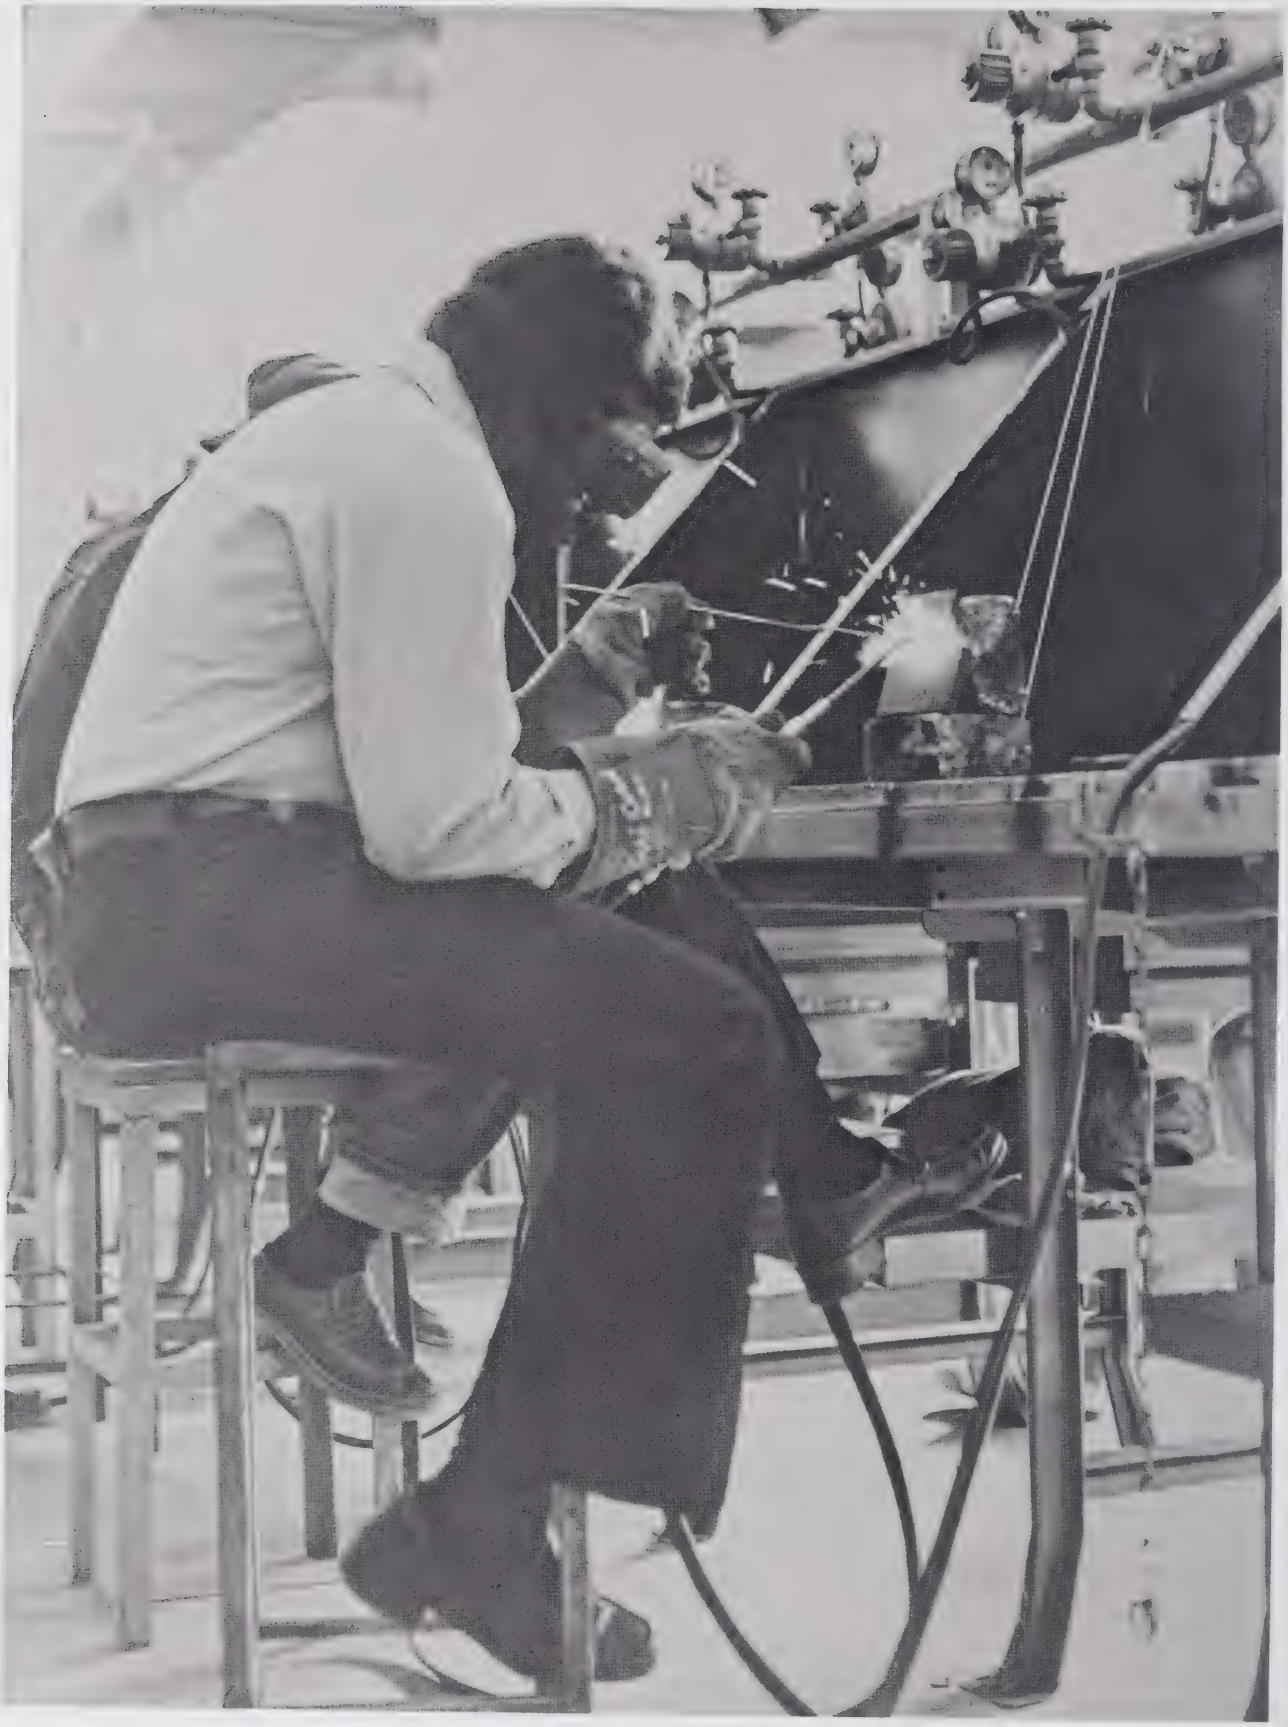
Reflections of nine years past. A different GTI. Different buildings. Different people. A small and limited curriculum. And very little community prestige. Reflections of an era past. Of classes meeting in rooms that once housed hospital patients. Of laboratories partitioned off where nurses once lived. Small budgets, small student bodies. But a very large potential for growth, development and service. The past nine years have seen changes. The hospital building with its makeshift classrooms is no more. Laboratories are now established in modern, climate-controlled buildings erected specifically for educational purposes. Curriculum offerings have expanded many times over. There are more students. More faculty and staff. And more prestige for both students and graduates. The GTI today has emerged beyond the dreams of its past reflections. It eagerly awaits the reality of tomorrow's anticipations.

Extra long skirts with rolled-down bobby socks for the gals. Button-down collars with a choice of flat-top or duck-tail haircuts for the guys. And ever-popular penny loafers for both. These are the styles that hold their own in past reflections of students at GTI. It was a time of sock-hops, Boar and Castle drags, and--oh, yes--19 cent per gallon gasoline for the transportation.

Today's version of yesterday's reflections: Comparisons are few, differences abound. The clothes, the hair, the transportation. They reflect not only a different GTI, but a different society as well. A society of Vietnams, Watergates, economic crisis, and employment concerns. And, by the same token, a society of new technologies, new discoveries, and greater potentials. They reflect a society in which educational institutes such as GTI become the rule rather than the exception.

The students of today are forming what someday will become their own reflections of GTI. On a day-to-day basis, they share with the Institute its labor pains of growth and development. They enjoy the fruits of extensive planning, forethought, and dynamic leadership that has charted the school's course of progress over past years. They participate in some of the decision-making that will enhance the educational experiences of students in years to come. Today's students are the GTI of today. Their present involvement in the life of the Institute forms the basis for their future reflections. And their subsequent degree of success as productive, conscientious citizens in the society of tomorrow will weigh heavily in proving GTI's worth and value to its community.

Few come to GTI with reflections of its past. Those who are here see it as it is, and as it is growing. Those who do not come continue to see it as it was. They are the unfortunate.



ACADEMICS

ENGLISH/SOCIAL SCIENCE

The English/Social Science department headed by Mr. Howard Parker has four new instructors. They are: Bonnie Piangentino, Linda White Bob Ruh, and Rhonda Trollinger.

Offering a wide range of electives, the department strives to help every curriculum on campus. They do this by offering them at a time when these classes are needed.

A general revision of course outlines has been in effect. Some of the outlines are being used by the Department of Community Colleges as models. Committees have also been formed to improve the one year curriculum courses.

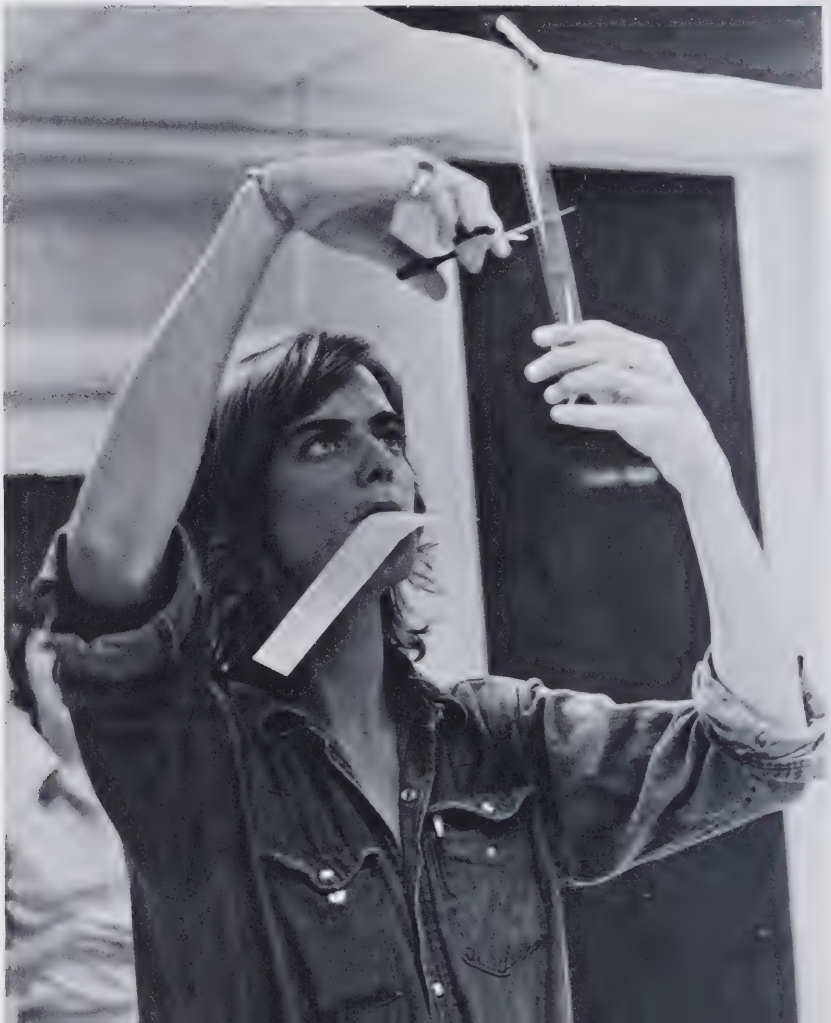
TECH-TALK



As your Great City
I see in jewlers' windows,
Clocks that tell the guaranteed Correct Time,
And in front of those clocks people always halted,
Adjusting their watches.
But suppose there were displayed beside the street
Some great poems,
Tellings perfect Truth or Beauty,
How many passersbyers
Would pause to adjust their minds?
